Remarks: This consists of two springs, known as Upper Side Hill and Lower Side Hill springs lying close together and by connecting the two by a ditch a usable volume of water is obtained and conducted to a small reservoir.

These springs were first used by Charles H. Odgers in 1900 for watering his sheep and cattle and who sold his range and land to Casten Olsen who then sold his range and land to this applicant in 1906 and these springs has been used exclusively by this applicant ever since for watering his sheep.

Each year the applicant has cleaned out and repaired the dams ditches and reservoirs so as to make it a better place and better suited to the purpose of watering his sheep.

This is one of a series of small springs and while none of them are sufficient to water a large herd, by combining them and ranging the sheep from one to the other sufficient water is secured to water a good sized herd.

Remarks:

Albert Roslund,
