(19) The map provided by the State Engineer and attached hereto as a part of this proof is hereby accepted as correctly showing the ditch lines or irrigation works diverting or conveying the water claimed and the lands irrigated, with certain exceptions.

(20) Water from the source given and through the works described is also used for the following purposes other than irrigation: also used for watering stock.

(21) The character of the soil is sandy loam. (Sandy, gravelly, loam) The soil needs 20.0 acre-feet per annum to properly irrigate the crops. A continuous flow of 7½ cubic feet of water per second, during the irrigation season of 4½ months, is needed to irrigate each 100 acres of land.

Remarks:

Since the construction of that dam and ditch, numerous ditches have been taken out of Steele Creek and the water now reaches that dam and ditch thru Steele Creek, and the ditches since taken out.

(We do not adopt the map.) Among other things we do not adopt the map for the following reasons: The stream designated on the State Engineer's map as Williams Creek is now, and at all times has been known as the North Fork of Steele Creek; the stream at designated on said map as branch of Williams' Creek is now and all times has been known as Williams' Branch Slough; the stream designated as Branch of Steele Creek which flows by Gibbs' house located apparently upon the map as a stream was originally at its head a ditch.

In Section 20 designated on the map as a channel was in fact, a ditch designated "Ditch No. 15", on the old map and was constructed in the year 1869.

Remarks: Ditches No. 13, 14, 15, and 16, width on bottom 1 foot, top 1.5 feet, depth 1 foot, grade 4 feet, per thousand feet. Ditch No. 20, width on top 2 feet, on bottom 1.5 feet, depth 1 foot, grade 4 feet per thousand feet. These five ditches divert water from Steele Creek and Noble Creek. Appropriation of water for Gibbs' Ditches 13, 14, 15, 16, and Gibbs ditches to Steele Creek and Noble Creek and thru Woods' ditch.

~~(We do not adopt the map.)~~ Among other things we do not adopt the map for the following reasons: The stream designated on the ~~State Engineer's~~ map as Williams Creek is now, and at all times has been known as the North Fork of Steele Creek; the streams designated on said map as branch of Williams' Creek is now and at all times has been known as Williams' Branch Slough; the stream designated as Branch of Steele Creek which flows by Gibbs' house located apparently upon the map as a stream was originally at its head a ditch.

In Section 20 designated on the map as a channel was in fact, a ditch designated "Ditch No. 13", on the old map and was constructed in the year 1869.

Remarks: That the line marked branch of Steele Creek beginning at a point from which the one-fourth section corner on the line between Section 17 and 20 in T. 35 N., R 62 E., bears N. 44° E. 6 chains distant, and running thence on to the meadow land in the NE¼ of the NE¼ of Sec. 20, T. 35 N., R. 62 E., and from which ditches No. 26 and No. 27 are taken was originally a ditch taken out of Steele Creek by James A. Steele in 1869, and was then and eversince has been used to irrigate the meadow lands of applicant situate in the northern portion f N½ of the NE¼ of Sec. 20, and the N½ of Sec. 21, T. 35 N., R. 62 E., and ditch 27 taken out of that ditch in 1873 for the purpose of distributing the water over land which the original ditch would not conveniently irrigate.

About the Spring of 1906 W. H. Gibbs, constructed ditch 26 starting at a point in the NE¼ of Sec. 20, which conveys water upon the NW¼ of the NE¼ of 20.

Bottom 2 feet, top 3 feet, depth 1 foot, grade 4 feet (see bottom of page 3, general statement, irrigates about 5 acres. Ditch No. 27 was taken out in 1873, Ditch No. 28 was taken out in 1913.

(To be inserted in or attached to the proof on ditch designated as No. 13 on old plat.

Ditch No. 9 was a ditch constructed in 1907 and used because the land could be more conveniently irrigated by that ditch than thru 5 or 12. The appropriation of water that is used in that ditch dates back to 1869.

(We do not adopt the map.) Among other things we do not adopt the map for the following reasons: The streams designated on the State Engineer's map as Williams Creek is now and at all times has been known as the North Fork of Steele Creek; the stream designated on said map as branch of Williams' Creek is now and at all times has been known as Williams' Branch Slough: The stream designated as branch of Steele Creek which flows by Gibbs' house located apparently upon the map as a stream was originally at its head a ditch,

In Section 20 designated on the map as a channel was in fact, a ditch designated "Ditch No. 15," on the old map and was constructed in the year 1869.
